

1/12/09
Contact 203.544.1267
Amy Kalafa

PRESS RELEASE PRESS RELEASE PRESS RELEASE**

Angry Dad Blows the Whistle on Outsourced School Food
“The devil is in the details”, he says.

Angrymoms.org, the website for the movie Two Angry Moms, scoops the media with a breaking news story about a lawsuit charging false claims against some of the nation’s largest food service management companies.

“Angry dad” Bob Pritsker of Weston, CT, has filed a lawsuit in the US Third Circuit’s District Court located in Philadelphia on behalf of taxpayers. The lawsuit charges that the management companies have manipulated contracts and conservatively skimmed a billion dollars from the National School Lunch Program.

Pritsker is a former chef / owner of several New York City gourmet restaurants; he also holds a JD, and an MBA. Sending his twin sons to first grade at a top-rated public school, what he saw in the school cafeteria “simply didn’t make sense”. Bob embarked upon an investigation that has occupied most of his time for the past four years, resulting in the lawsuit that was recently unsealed.

To view filmmaker Amy Kalafa’s 45-minute interview with Mr. Pritsker, visit: angrymoms.org