Tele-Workshop (Custom/Private)

Cost $200

If you are in the process of forming a local group, or have just gotten one off the ground, if you have a local parent association that wants to put better school food on their agenda and wants access to experts in the field, if you want guidance and information specific to your needs, consider booking a live private and custom tele-workshop facilitated by Amy, Susan or one of the experts featured in Two Angry Moms.

Become Informed on Important topics like:

- How do we get from here to there? Community outreach, Organization building, diversity and responsibility, Promotion and Sustainability
- The 5 least healthy ingredients in school food: Don't be fooled by healthy sounding menu and snack items
- Wellness Committee fact and fiction: Guidelines, policies and contracts
- 5 Reasons Your District Can't Get Better Food: Overcoming common hurdles
- Budgets, taxes, pricing and competitive foods: 5 Ways Your District Can Cover the Cost of Better Food
- Is Your District A "Self-Op" or an "FSMC"? Learning the language of food service: Communication and relationship building with your school food service providers and school administration

Or customize the content to suite your specific needs. Bring current issues to your tele-workshop and inform the members of your committee or group.

This conference can accommodate up to 75 callers and can be timed to coordinated with your scheduling needs.

Make an expert available to help you through your process of change.

Tele-Seminar Complimentary
(must have purchased a screening kit package to qualify)

As part of a “Screening Kit” purchase, you are eligible to participate in a complimentary Two Angry Moms Tele-Seminar. Designed to address issues sure to arise along the path of change these workshops are open to screening hosts who have purchased a “screening kit” and their screening participants (on a first-come, first-served basis).

Topics scheduled for the coming months include:

- How do we get from here to there? Community outreach, Organization building, diversity and responsibility, Promotion and Sustainability (October)
- The 5 least healthy ingredients in school food: Don't be fooled by healthy sounding menu and snack items (November)
- Wellness Committee fact and fiction: Guidelines, policies and contracts (December)
- 5 Reasons Your District Can't Get Better Food: Overcoming common hurdles (January)
- Budgets, taxes, pricing and competitive foods: 5 Ways Your District Can Cover the Cost of Better Food (February)
- Is Your District A "Self-Op" or an "FSMC"? Learning the language of food service: Communication and relationship building with your school food service providers and school administration (March)

Make an expert available to help you through your change to better school food.

There is no cost for this service when received as part of a “screening kit” purchase. Hosts will be notified with directions for dialing in to tele-seminars which will begin in October. Complimentary tele-seminars (only available through the purchase of a “screener kit”) are not customized or exclusive to your group but may include other participating groups from around the country.
